RE: MS#26-156-1, "Depositor Discipline in Community Banking: Evidence from the CECL Information Shock"

Dear Dimuthu:

Thank you for submitting your paper, "Depositor Discipline in Community Banking: Evidence from the CECL Information Shock", to the Journal of Money, Credit and Banking. Unfortunately, I have bad news.

I sent the paper to two very knowledgeable referees. I have received the enclosed reports. Both referees like the research question but are critical of the analysis. The referees raise many questions about the setup and implementation of your analysis.

The paper addresses an interesting and important issue, and I read it with great interest. However, I concur with the concerns raised by the referees. Given the feedback, I do not see a clear, speedy path to a publishable paper in the JMCB. I hope you find the referees' comments useful as you prepare your paper for publication elsewhere.

Thank you very much for allowing us to review your paper, and we look forward to the next opportunity to consider your work.

Sincerely,

Luc Laeven
